DULLNESS RULES STOCK MARKET TRANSACTIONS

Satisfactory Progress Shown by Reports of December Export Trade Gives Encouragement.

NY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LENDED MONEY
New York, Jan. 2.—The week's stock market was excessively dull. Price limits are fixed by official minimums in one direction; in the other pressure is encountered for reduction of bank loans here and in London. Absence of forced foreign selling and steady, although restricted investment open a way to readjustment or possible removal of established price restrictions. Desire to await London's reopening next week added to the stagnation.

Washington's protest against British treatment of merchant shipping weighed on sentiment. Satisfactory progress in export trade is shown by December. Weakness of foreign exchange confirmed the improved condition. Swelling merchandise exports, the last year's heavy gold imports, prearrangements for interest and dividend payments abroad and abundance of floating currency supplies in London, due to government credit measures, all contributed to relaxation in the various exchange markets. Meanwhile additional rumors of foreign loans by our bankers including negotiations with Russia, form the basis of interesting conjecture.

Substantial increase in December unfilled steel orders is indicated by current returns.
